~ March Theme: Brokenness ~ Meredith's Musings

Kintsugi is "the Japanese art of fixing broken pottery with lacquer dusted or mixed with powdered gold, silver, or platinum" (Wikipedia). Through kintsugi, the broken object is not only repaired, but becomes more beautiful – the cracks forming a lovely shiny metallic accent to the piece.

Brokenness, our theme for March, includes two related ideas here:

1. We can transform tragedy into growth, deepening, and a life of greater wisdom and joy. The "breaks" in what we thought our lives should be – loss of a job we expected to keep, loss of a loved one, a significant injury or illness -- can serve, ultimately, to open us up to live in a freer, gladder way. This is not an inevitable outcome of catastrophe, but it is a possible one. "We can let the circumstances of our lives harden us so that we become increasingly resentful and afraid," as Pema Chodron notes, "or we can let them soften us and make us kinder and more open to what scares us. We always have this choice."

It will be helpful to reflect on the possibilities for deepening wisdom and tenderness from tragedy when we are not in the midst of it. At periods of relative stability in our lives, we are positioned to have conversations about the effects of significant loss. (When a friend is in the midst of coping with a harrowing loss, it's probably not the time to say, "You'll grow from this.") Loss and grief are inevitable in life, and the reflections and conversations we have as we explore brokenness can begin to prepare us for that pain. We can never make it not hurt. What we can do is nurture habits of thought and spirit to help us manage the pain and do the spiritual kintsugi repair work to emerge more beautiful.

2. Every gift comes with a shadow. We are sometimes tempted to shake our heads about our own or other people's shadow side. "Well, nobody's perfect," we might remind ourselves. More accurate, I think, would be to say, "Nobody simultaneously exhibits contradictory qualities." If your gift is the wisdom of experience, the shadow is not having youthful exuberance. If your gift is youthful exuberance, the shadow is inexperience. If your gift is speaking your mind freely, the shadow is occasionally giving offense. If your gift is diplomacy, the shadow is that you don't speak your mind freely. If your gift is being tall enough to dunk a basketball, the shadow is that you can't be comfortable in the back seat of subcompact car.

Part of understanding brokenness is understanding that our shadow side is not a fault that we want to hide and minimize as much as possible. Our shadows are the necessary enablers of our gifts. In fact, ultimately, the shadow is the gift, seen from a different angle. As in kintsugi, the beauty comes not from trying to hide the cracks, but in learning how to skillfully accentuate them.

MARCH SERVICES 10:00 AM

March 1

11th Sunday of winter

Rev. Meredith Garmon

The Spiritual Practice of Generosity

"Generosity," as Christina Feldman so aptly put it, "lies at the heart of spiritual practice. Extending generosity to ourselves and others gladdens our heart, is a direct way of healing division, and brings joy."

March 8

12th Sunday of winter

Rev. Meredith Garmon

Broken Open

Drawing on the stories in Elizabeth Lesser's "Broken Open" we'll look at how difficult times can help us grow.

March 15

13th Sunday of winter

Rev. Meredith Garmon

The Gift of the Shadow

Your "shadow side" could make big problems for you and those around you. Appropriately embraced and worked with, though, the shadow is revealed as a gift.

March 22nd

1st Sunday of Spring

Rev. Dr. Kelly Murphy Mason

Mothers and Lovers of Souls

Who were the Desert Mothers and what can they teach us about living soulfully today? There's much wisdom to be gleaned from the extreme places they went – and also from the great lengths they then took to stay put. These remarkable women may help us better understand the unique spiritual insight often emerges from the remotest locales of our world.

March 29

2nd Sunday of spring

Rev. Michael Tino

Swapping.

On this Sunday, Mt. Kisco UU minister visits White Plains, Meredith visits Lake Mohegan, the Lake Mohegan UU minister visits Hastings, the Hastings UU minister visits Croton, and the Croton UU minister visits Mt. Kisco. We're realizing the inter-dependent web of Westchester UUs!

Thank You!

The Board of Trustees, and Rev. Meredith, would like to extend special thanks:

- To our always dedicated and on the job Caring and Sharing Committee. They are always there in a time of need, helping congregants get through times of crisis in a kind and compassionate way.
- To our Crafters for all of their work in creating beautiful items for sale, and donating a portion of their sale proceeds to the Minister's Discretionary Fund. In particular our crafters are Linda Cozzi, Ingrid Hartmann, Carole Mehta, Lisa Meyer, and Barbara Youngman.
- To Ray Messing and Vicky Van Wert for their commitment to the holiday giving opportunities. Through their tireless efforts the congregation continues to rally and provide impressive amounts of food, clothing, and gifts for those in need.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

From the Chair's Chair

From Merriam-Webster: hunker down: to crouch or squat, to settle in for an extended period, to assume a defensive position to resist difficulties. It feels like we have done quite a bit of hunkering in February. Record breaking low temperatures and blistering wind had many of us literally or figuratively hunkering. And yet some positive notes have come from this difficult time. The best quote of the month for me came from a junior colleague. He grew up in Mexico and did his medical training in Miami. Running into him outside the hospital in the bitter cold and wind last week, he said, "This is so exotic! I can't wait til tomorrow morning to see what '3' actually feels like." That put things in perspective. And despite the cold and difficult traveling conditions, attendance at CUC Sunday worship was surprisingly good. And Journey groups continued to serve many in our need for community and interactive spirituality. So even as the weather pushed us toward reclusiveness and grumbling, there were bright points and sparks of hope. One note of gratitude: our Brunch Committee -- led by the indefatigable John Schwam -- which has enhanced our sense of community in the last couple of months by bringing forth scrumptious offerings out of our newly renovated kitchen. Thanks to John and all who have helped with these efforts!

The monthly Board of Trustees meeting in February included a visit from the Music Committee, with presentations from Adam Kent and Lisa Meyer about this year's accomplishments to date and plans for next year's programming. We may look forward to UU inter-congregational choir activities and another interesting holiday production for next year that once again invites participation from talented members of our congregation. We also heard from the What's in a Name Committee and learned that many of the congregants surveyed would favor consideration of a name change. A congregation-wide discussion about this will take place in the coming weeks. The Social Action planning committee is also continuing to consider options about how to proceed with a cohesive plan for congregational involvement in Social Justice.

March will kick off our Giving campaign for CUC. Every year a dedicated group of CUC members -- this year led by Jeff Blatt -- brings us to the table to consider why we are here and how we can continue to sustain the excellent programming and activities that make our congregation such a wonderful community. Financially our congregation is in good shape this year, with pledges from last year coming in as expected, and a strong showing from our investments which is keeping our endowment stable and growing. Look for posters and flyers around the church, and testimonials from the pulpit. We are hoping for another year of generosity from everyone.

Hang in there everyone. Spring is only 3 weeks away!

Yours in Faith,

Randy Marshall, Chair, CUC Board of Trustees

We're All In This Together

2015-2016 CUC Annual Giving Campaign

Dear CUC Members and Friends,

I think you'll agree that this is an invigorating and inspiring time to be part of the CUC family. Rev. Garmon continues to bring fresh ideas, energy, and spiritual stimulation to CUC. This year, we welcomed our new Director of Religious Education, Perry Montrose, who in a short amount of time has proved to be a wonderful addition to our home of liberal religion.

We are all well aware of our mission:

Nurture Spirituality. Foster Compassion. Engage in Service.

As we endeavor to translate that mission into action, I am reminded of the 4 P's that Rev. Garmon has asked us to consider as members of CUC:

Our Presence – Being present in mind, body, and spirit for Sunday services and other events.

Our Participation – Taking part in the programs of the church.

Our Pledge – Making a pledge to fund our programs and ministries and maintain the building in which they are fostered.

Our Practice – Practicing Unitarian Universalist values in daily life and an intentional discipline of cultivating spiritual growth.

It is now that time of year when we need to focus on our pledges!

Our goal for this year is $425,000 – a 13% increase over last year's pledge total. To reach our goal, we will need 100% participation and whenever possible, we need members and friends to increase the amount of their pledge this year. Through our collective effort, we will be assured of a successful campaign that will support the ongoing programs and operations of CUC and allow us to fund new initiatives and projects that will set us on the path to fully realizing our mission.

As you decide on the amount of your pledge, please take a moment to reflect on the importance that CUC occupies in your life and the impact that your gift will have. The enclosed fact sheet has information on the tangible benefits that your pledge brings to the church as well as a breakdown of pledge levels and sources of funding that may be helpful as you determine what to give.

Please fill out and return the enclosed pledge form to CUC by April 26. You can also pledge online by to the CUC website at cucwp.org and clicking on the Annual Giving Campaign link on the left hand side of the home page. If you have any questions or would like a call or visit from a member of the Giving Campaign Committee, please contact me at Jeff.Blatt@Timeinc.com or 914-715-3277.

Thank you for your commitment to ensuring that CUC will remain strong and vibrant in the coming year. Yours in community,

Jeff Blatt, 2015 Giving Campaign Chair

P.S. Save the date: Giving Campaign Brunch on Sunday April 26 to thank and celebrate everyone who has pledged!

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Perry's Ponderings...

I remember being introduced to the evolutionary theory of punctuated equilibrium that is about species moving along in stasis or very gradual evolution and then having a sudden major change due to a mutation or other event. It strikes me how this biological evolutionary theory actually applies to our individual, spiritual, emotional lives. We create our routines and our lives move along in a somewhat constant way, hopefully with gradual personal growth happening in the background, until an event hits our lives with a sudden impact. These incidents that puncture our equilibrium force us to shift our perspective and create a new reality. We are transformed by what causes a fissure in our lives and at first seems to break us.

In my own life, I have been through serious illness, divorce, the death of young and old people close to me, and supporting those around me through addiction, cancer, and mental health struggles. Each of these situations has brought its own anguish, attempt for understanding, and search for a path forward. In these moments of life, we struggle to understand the circumstances and ways to cope. I was once told, "No death stands alone." Our lives are composed of the connective fiber of our life experiences. We experience a sudden brokenness in the context of everything else we have been through and who we are at that moment in time.

Afterward, we continue to process and mesh the experience with our previous life perspective, forming a new vision and way of being that contains the old material woven with our new passages. Sometimes it feels like our life is never the same again. Well, it isn't; we have evolved.

Although it is an internal process, we depend on others to move ourselves forward. The people around us provide perspective, comfort our pain, push us forward, and often hold up a mirror so we may see more deeply what is happening inside of us. It is invaluable to have a community to which you can bring the questions, feelings, uncertainties, and fledgling realizations. In our Unitarian Universalist faith community we grow together emotionally and intellectually.

The CUC Adult RE Support Team is having initial conversations about how we can create more opportunities for growth and learning. We want to intentionally allow the space for discussing life transitions, topics of interest, theological exploration, faith identity, ethical questions, and shared experiences. There are many formats for doing this whether in a single class, ongoing discussion group, field trip, lecture, or spiritual practice. We welcome your thoughts and ideas as we go through the process. Let us know what has punctuated your equilibrium and what questions it has raised for you that would be better processed in beloved community. Adult Religious Education is about sharing our stories in the context of a focused topic, so that we learn from one another. In this way, we continue to transform the cracks of our brokenness into beautiful lines of our personal evolution.

Thank You!

5th-6th grade families for an amazing February Chili Brunch. Yummy food and hard work in the kitchen made for a successful event for the whole community.

Pam Cucinell for leading a full yoga session with the children on Feb. 15.

John Schwam for supporting our youth at district Cons.

John Cavallero for facilitating a great learning session for the teachers about multiple intelligences.

STITCHING IN SPIRIT: THE CUC MONTHLY
CRAFTING CIRCLE

CUC Adult RE Program

Sun. 1 March 2015 at 11:45

in Youth Room, RE Wing

Rev. Kelly Murphy Mason, Community Minister

Fiber arts and handicrafts have figured significantly in people's communal and spiritual lives for millennia. This has been especially true for women, historically, although these interests now hold very broad-based appeal. Today we see the resurgence gaining ground in the "maker movement" and crafting craze. Come join affiliated minister and avid crocheter Kelly Murphy Mason in this ongoing group exploring what it might mean for those in our faith community to be "stitching in spirit." Please feel free to bring with you any handcrafting projects you might have underway – or else just bring an open and inquiring mind. This CUC crafting circle will be meeting the first Sunday of the month for the duration of the church program year: March 1st, April 5th, May 3rd, and June 7th, in the Youth Room of the RE wing. Anyone with any degree of interest is welcome to join at any point, and newcomers are always encouraged to attend!
